

HILLEL

That's how it was that end of May in 1949.

Collège exams had just finished and no one had a thought in his head except----- relaxation. So-----

Everybody applied for the Hillel CAMP WEEKEND which was held at Camp Livingston on May 27, 28, and 29.

In the city it was hot and sticky. But, the lucky people out at Livingston splashed happily away in the swimming pool or lay near the pool in the pleasant sun, drops of water trickling down their tanning skin.

There we were at Livingston playing tennis, baseball....

The bern dance with all that color, the campfire burning down into coals as the night wore on, the cookout, and those tantalizing smells of steaks browning and corn roasting. The informal group discussions with Maurie Davis and Mike Heller and anyone else who wanted to join in.

Everything, show ,bedding, facilities, and transportaion cost only $6 apiece.
