

AN ODE ABOUT LES GIRLS.

There are two articles somewhere
Which you cannot see everywhere,
That with restraint and never any fussin'
Have been the objects of- oh so much- discussion.

Of no concern, or so it'd seem to me
Is any part of these girls fine anatomy;
Both girls in size are anything bu tall,
Proportionally, their stature is rather small.

All right, I'll take you off the fence,
Won't keep you any longer in suspense.
I'm talking about our Frances & our Susan (Next line is censored, because Susan only rhymes with Schmussem or Busen).

Enough to say, both are a boon to all
Who might go in for DONOR luncheons spring or fall.
Such needless time without them would we be spending
If we must ask: "Are those two working, while I'm<sup>up</sup> bending?"
(I mean the elbow, not the posterior).

One as a Donor chairman, show planner or the like,
The other as director, author, star performer at the mike,
These two are always working in accord
Concerned with our success only, not with their reward.

So, girls, our motto is: "By all means let us keep them"
With earned applause and honors let us heap them;
We'll give them love, koved, praise their chein,
Because what good at Donor time is Jack La Lanne?
